Androscoggin

The shoe shipments this week number 1,514 cases. Smith, Pray & Co. has made this week the largest shipment in the history of their business. Orders for ladies' goods are coming in briskly and the outlook is excellent. The new firm of Monroes, Packard & Emscott is still at work on the samples for their business. They have received 600 pounds of leather this week and will soon begin to manufacture for the trade.

A little daughter of John L. [illegible], of Lewiston, fell through a hole in the sidewalk on Sabin's street Tuesday. The sidewalk, where the accident occurred is about three or four feet from the ground. The little girl fell in such a manner that she was caught by the chin, and held in such a position that, had not help been at hand she must have choked to death in a short time. A plank had to be sawn away before she could be released. She received a very severe nervous shock, as well as bodily injuries and is now very ill. The sidewalk on Sabin's street is in a bad condition

The residence of Benjamin Newell, in Perryville, Auburn, was broken into by burglars, Sunday night. A screen over the window was torn away—the window lifted by breaking the catch, and the house entered. A pocketbook was stolen from Mr. Newell's room. It was a long, flat pocket book in which Mr. Newell kept both money and papers. The thieves escaped with about $10 in money and some valuable private papers. The police were notified Wednesday morning of the theft. No clue has been obtained. There were marks of footprints in the garden. Mr. Newell's house is among the first of the horse cars a dozen rods or so from the street

The present term of the S. J. Court now in session will be a short one and will probably adjourn on Saturday of this week.

21,000 tons and about 70,000 persons crossed the ferry, at Carlton, in 115 days, and half as many more used the ferry, yet there are those who contend that a bridge is not a necessity. The bridge will be completed and ready to open to business on Saturday.

Walter Ireland of Blaine, met with a severe accident while sawing wood in the forestdone day last week, which resulted in a broken leg. He was cared for by a physician, and is doing well.

A party of four young persons living in the west part of Blaine went into the woods last Friday in quest of hazel nuts, they lost their way, and remained out all night, notwithstanding diligent search was made by their parents. They returned all right the next day.

The Republican says: F. D. Feigu, Esq. of Caribou dug Tuesday seven heaped barrels of the Beauty of Hebron potatoes from 25 square rods of ground, which is at the rate of 577 bushels per acre.

Through the efforts of Mr. Samuel A. Gray the handsome sum of thirty five dollars was secured for the benefit of the young Poland boy who accidentally met with the loss of an eye last week while playing with his school mates. The Surgeon in St. John, where he was taken for treatment, are hopeful of saving the sight of his other eye.

Capt. Davis of the Portland Mechanic Blues made at Biddeford Tuesday, a score of 17, 21, 20, 22, 22 and 22 distance of 200 yards, consecutively, out of a possible 25 at each round. At 500 yards he made 21 and 24.

The late William H. Jerris will leaves $200 to the Maine General Hospital for a free bed and $100 each to the Aged Women's and Aged Men's Homes, Female Orphan Asylum and Widow's Wood Society, payable in three years.

During August 1884 the total value of beef pork and dairy products, for the month, from Portland amounted in value to $77 but there was none for August 1885. For the ten months ending August 31st the value was $1,704,220 against $3,388,420 for the corresponding time in 1884.

Wednesday morning while the stevedores were engaged in discharging salt from the schooner A. P. Emerson, lying at Union wharf, the stage parted aloft and the man on the stage who was tending ... having hold of the line was ... from the stage, but fortunately landed on deck on his feet. It was a narrow escape as the distance was some fifteen feet.

The reunion of the Chautauqua circles of Portland, was held at Y. M. C. Hall Wednesday evening. The attendance was good, and the exercises interesting. Prayer was offered by Rev. F. T. Bayley. Rev. C. H. Daniels spoke of the power of ideas as exemplified in the Chautauqua work. Rev. R. P. Snow of Biddeford, spoke of the attractions of Chautauqua, and the extent of the movement. Chautauqua helps God and humanity to mend the evils of the times. Mr. J. C. Haskell of Auburn, reported from Lakeview, and Miss Eva Waterhouse from Fryeburg. Greetings were read from the New England secretary of 86 at New Bedford, and Dr. Bashford explained the course of reading for 1885.

Triumph Lodge I. O. G. T. was reorganized at Pownal, Wednesday evening, September 16th, by M. J. Dow, of Brooks. This is one of the old Lodges of the State, having originally been instituted in 1865. It has, however, for some time been in a dormant condition. They start anew with a large membership. The principal officers are as follows: L. D., Alroy Noyes, W. C. T., True Warren, W. V. T., Lizzie Bailey, W. S., Nellie Noyes. They will meet Saturday evenings.

The engine on the mill train over the Eastern road, due in Portland at noon Wednesday broke an eccentric when about four miles from the Biddeford station. One of the cylinders could be used though not sufficiently to draw the heavy load of passengers aboard the train and they were delayed there about an hour and a quarter, until the arrival of the next train for Portland, which was about half an hour late. The engine upon the latter train pushed the other, into Biddeford station where the passengers were transferred. It took over an hour for the injured train to run into Portland.

Hancock.

A Lubec schooner loaded with fish and plaster, ran on Long Ledge, near Southwest Harbor, during the storm of Saturday night the 5th inst., and sprung a leak; by great efforts by the crew at the pumps she was kept afloat, and can be repaired.

Mr. W. P. Wailey, who has purchased the shore front of the Phillips lot on Eden street at Bar Harbor, just east of the Richo lot is to erect a ten thousand dollar cottage thereon before the opening of another season. W. R. Emerson is the architect.

Deer are reported to be unusually plenty up river this season. If we had a warden here and the abominable practice of hounding them could be stopped, they would doubtless be found in still greater numbers. As it is the law restricting the hounding and shipping of deer seems to be practically a dead letter in this region. Ellsworth American

Dr. A. C. Vaughan, late editor of the American, accompanied by Mrs. Vaughan, left Ellsworth, Monday morning, for Foxcroft, where they will reside for the present. During their stay of seven years in Ellsworth Dr. and Mrs. Vaughan have made many friends and they will carry with them to their new home the best wishes of the whole community. The Doctor is recovering from a rheumatic disease, and will, doubtless, in a short time be fully restored to health. Ellsworth American

Kennebec

The annual meeting of the Maine Pedagogical Society will take place at Waterville on Thursday evening, Friday and Saturday forenoon, Oct. 15th to 17th. The exercises will be of great value to all teachers and a full attendance is hoped for. The usual arrangements for reduced fares and hotel rates, and for free entertainment for lady teachers will be made.

Dr. J. H. Hanson, principal of the Coburn Classical Institute, Waterville, met with a painful accident on Monday, a radiator falling upon his leg, scarring it from the knee down and badly jamming his foot. He has attended to his school duties, however, with great difficulty.

The Governor and Executive Council will give a hearing next week on the commutation of Mrs. Blaney's sentence. Several petitions have been received in favor of executive clemency in this case. Attorney General Baker will be in attendance. The general impression seems to be that if Blaney's sentence is commuted, mercy should also be shown to Mrs. Barrows.

Miss Ida Logan of Windsor, aged 23 years, daughter of Mrs. Chandler, died very suddenly at her home Monday morning. She retired for the night as well as usual, with her two little sisters. At 5.30 o'clock in the morning when her sisters were arising for the day, she spoke to them to keep quiet and not make so much noise. They went to call her in about a half hour and she not answering, they shook her to wake her up, but she did not move and they called their mother in. A physician was summoned in haste and found her dead. A post mortem examination was made in the afternoon and evening by three physicians. They found that death was caused by a rupture of a blood vessel at the base of the brain which caused almost instant death. A considerable tubercular deposit was found involving the apex of the left lung, showing that tuberculosis—consumption—was well seated.

The new cotton factory at Augusta, is a sweet smelling building. From top to bottom the walls have been whitewashed and oil rinsed. The double floors are now being laid. The second flooring is of hard pine, 1¾ of an inch in thickness. Tarred paper is placed between each thickness. The third story floor is completed and smoothed, the second floor nearly finished, and the first commenced. Although not according to the original plan a floor is to be placed in the basement, where 150 additional looms will be placed, the floors above not being of sufficient capacity to hold the required 1,400 looms. There will be three rows of electric lights in each story, holes having been cut for the wires in the cross beams supporting the flooring. The wheel house is to be built at once and is to extend up the entire height of the factory affording sink rooms for the operatives. Iron bridges, one extending from the south end of the new mill and the other from the tower to the old factory buildings, are to be constructed, the former to be employed for transportation of filling. The boiler iron shell to enclose the water wheel is in place and one length of penstock attached. The wheel will be lowered into position this week.

Knox

A cow belonging to John S. Stevens was killed by the freight train Thursday, near McIntire's crossing, Warren. Some one carelessly opened the bars and the animal ventured on the track with the above result.

The mains from Oyster River Pond connecting with those laid throughout the city of Rockland, will be nearly completed by Saturday night. The excavation for the big pipe which is to lead the waters of the pond to the gate house was begun Monday morning. The work of putting in service pipes in the city has commenced and very few householders are found who do not request to be connected with the new pipes.

Piscataquis

A couple of Indians from Oldtown put up at the Lake House Greenville, a few nights ago, and during the night one of them arose from his bed and leaped from the second story window, striking on his back on the walk below. At last accounts he was in a very precarious condition. It is said that the fellow had been drinking freely for a day or two and this rash act was probably caused by too much fire water.

Somerset.

Mr. A. S. Whittier, of St. Albans, found his horse's leg broken, while in his stall Tuesday morning, just above the ankle on the right hind leg. The horse was valued at $400. Mr. Whittier gave the horse to Frank F. Baker and Melvin Bigelow, who have had the leg set and hope to save the horse.

Chas. Buzzell (or Buswell) and wife, who live in Pittsfield on the Hartland road, are reported to have been blessed with a new baby, now four weeks old, who had at its birth one well developed tooth, and three others in an advanced state of dentition, being nearly through the gum. The child is said to have nothing abnormal about it in other respects.

Waldo

Abbie A., a little nine years old daughter of Daniel Gould, of Jackson, is dangerously ill of Bright's disease.

Mr. H. L. Woodcock, of Belfast, while at work at Quantabacook, in Searsmont, took out an oak log that has been sunk in the pond sixty-five years. The wood was as sound as when first cut, and contained the peculiar odor of oak.

Mr. C. W. Bradford, of Thorndike, has invented and made application for a patent on a key guard which he has named the "Little Tyler." This little invention can be applied to any door having a lock and key and when applied it renders the lock absolutely burglar proof. He is already receiving orders for them although they haven't been before the public as yet. He intends to exhibit them at the coming State Fair.

The Fashions.

[New York Evening Post.]

Comfortable and novel gossamers, provided for the coming wet season, are made of dove-colored mohair, made perfectly water-repellant. These have long capes and are cut in close surtout shape, and long enough to cover the entire dress beneath.

The fashion of open or half-open bodices has created a demand for chemisettes, guimpes, and old-fashioned stomachers of every sort and made of every kind of fabric. For morning are plain chemisettes made of finest white linen, laid in cluster tucks, with narrow bands of insertion alternating, and neat turn-over collar, as a finish, to be fastened with double studs held by a fine gold chain. Their come more dressy fancies in lace and embroidery and handsome chemisettes Russe of exquisite French needlework, wrought on Swiss muslin and special patterns. There are also guimpes of black tulle, bead-wrought, with alternating stripes of guipure lace, also worked with jet, and delicate evening styles made of cream Spanish blonde ecru gauze, closely shirred and chenille-dotted, with mauve, black, scarlet or pale blue; and lastly entire plastrons reaching the whole front of the bodice made of soft Victoria silk and superbly embroidered in white silk, with tiny flowers, and dainty buds made wholly of seed and fine Roman pearl beads.

A pretty French bonnet in princesse shape, displayed by an up town milliner, had its entire surface covered with deep red and orange-shaded velvet, nasturtiums and wall blossoms, which were veiled with black Brussels net dotted with jet beads. Another larger bonnet of dark Venetian green velvet was wreathed with shaded plush autumn leaves, magnificently colored in scarlet, green, and gold—not separated, but with one gorgeous shade blending into another like the natural foliage. A third bonnet was made of ruby velvet and trimmed with a mass of pale pink velvet dahlias set up directly in front. One model in black velvet was made brilliant and most effective by long slender sprays of vivid red sumac arranged like feathers at the front and sides of the fishwife poke which flared sharply in the centre and curved broadly at each side. These flower and foliage-trimmed bonnets were exceptions to the general rule which prevailed among the handsome array of bonnets and hats, as wide cashmere-patterned scarfs in deep autumn combinations of color, velvet gilt ribbons sparkling tinsels, embroidered on net, military braids, tinsel et weavings, and fancy dotted and striped ribbons, with scalloped edges formed the gay garnitures of the majority of stylish models.

The "Louvre" jacket, made of shaggy or rough surfaced cloth, with its velvet revers and collar and large silver buttons, bids fair to become one of the very popular styles for winter's livery. The coat can be worn open or fastened closely to the throat as taste or discretion may suggest. The fronts are half loose even when the jacket is buttoned, but the back fits snugly, and is considerably shorter than the front. Though there is but slight variation in the shape, considerable in style is compassed by the use of many different fabrics—by the employment of plain instead of rough cloth, or giving it a decidedly English appearance by making the wrap of plaided goods with hood at the back gayly lined, and broad pocket flaps at each side, likewise brightened and trimmed with large smoke-pearl buttons which reflect the colors of the plaid instead of the usual metal ones. There are again imitation Astrakhan or Persian lambs wool trimmings upon the coat, or the new bouclé fabrics are utilized for collar and revers. Trifling as these variations are, they prevent that unpleasant similarity which in the case of every popular fashion too often becomes wearisome monotonous and common.

Coquelicot red and a deep rich shade of olive brown are handsomely combined in elegant Parisian visiting dresses of Lyons satin and plush. The richest and most elaborate of these have the poppy red satin waistcoat densely covered with a magnificent embroidery of olive-brown beads and chenille of like shade.

Some of the new velvet costumes are made in short princesse style, plain at the back of the bodice, with full butterfly drapery arranged upon the lower portion. The front of the bodice forms a small and short close-fitting coat-front, slightly open to show the vest beneath. In some instances the skirt portions, front and back, fall in rich, straight folds, with a narrow plaiting at the foot of the skirt; in others there are box pleatings down the entire front, with satin of a contrasting shade set on flat between each wide plait, and in not a few costumes is noted an entire absence of color, the front consisting of a false skirt with a velvet plaiting around the bottom, and an extremely long tunic draped in soft upright folds and joined to the straight waterfall draping in the back.

There were lately displayed at a fashionable importing house in this city a number of exceptionally elegant wraps for the fall and winter. The styles in long and short garments were about equally divided, the new creations in the former appearing in such grace of form and outline, and fashioned of such novel and elegant materials as to re-establish them in any favor they may have lost for a season. Velvet-figured wool goods, plush bengaline, velvet brocaded Ottoman silk, combined with plain velvet, satin, duchess and black Victoria silk, were used for these, and also for the dressy visites and other short confections. Among the exclusive styles this season are long Spanish wraps made of black brocaded satin, richly lined and decorated. One brought by a returned tourist from Paris is made of velvet-brocaded Ottoman silk lined with pale pink rose surah and trimmed with cascades of genuine old Spanish lace eight inches wide, headed by bands of massive jet-work in floral designs. A short wrap in visite shape is made of black Sicilienne, trimmed with silk, gimp, and chenille bands, and lined with Burgundy red satin. Down the front are handsome clasps of real silver in filigree.

PILES! PILES! PILES!
A SURE CURE FOUND AT LAST!
NO ONE NEED SUFFER
A sure cure for Blind, Bleeding, Itching and Ulcerated Piles has been discovered by Dr. William's (an Indian Remedy,) called Dr. William's Indian Pile Ointment. A single box has cured the worst chronic cases of 25 or 30 years standing. No one need suffer five minutes after applying this wonderful soothing medicine. Lotions, instruments and electuaries do more harm than good. William's Indian Pile Ointment absorbs the tumors, allays the intense itching, (particularly at night after getting warm in bed,) acts as a poultice, gives instant relief, and is prepared only for Piles, itching of the private parts, and for nothing else.
Read what the Hon. J. M. Coffinberry, of Cleveland, says about Dr. William's Indian Pile Ointment. "I have used scores of Pile Cures, and, it affords me pleasure to say, that I have never found anything which gave such immediate and permanent relief as Dr. William's Indian Ointment."
For sale by all druggists and mailed on receipt of price—$1 00.

NEWSPAPERARCHIVE®

Whig and Courier.

BOUTELLE & BURR, PROPRIETORS.

[illegible] BOUTELLE Editor

[illegible] letters should be addressed to [illegible] and communications intended [illegible] should be addressed "Editor of Whig and Courier."

SATURDAY, SEPT. 19, 1885.

Over $1,000,000 in drafts and cash were found in the 4,343,000 letters sent to the Dead letter Office last year.

The Democrats in Virginia have adopted an idea from the red shirted riders of South Carolina and formed cavalry companies to escort Fitz Lee in his campaign tour about the South.

"I see," said an opposing counsel to the late Emery A. Storrs, "you hate to meet the truth in this matter." "I never do meet it," was the prompt reply, "the truth and I always travel in the same direction."

An interview quotes ex-Senator Chaffee as saying that the story of General Grant expressing a preference for burial in New York is "all stuff," and Mr. Chaffee believes that the Soldiers' Home at Washington will eventually be the resting place of General Grant's remains.

Many readers of the North American Review will be surprised that the editor should permit Mr. Dorman B. Eaton, of the Civil Service Commission, to use its columns for the publication of a most insulting and ungentlemanly personal tirade against Mr. Rossiter Johnson, a contributor to the magazine.

Some months ago the Administration discharged a hundred or more employes from the Brooklyn Navy Yard, and it was stated that their places would not be filled. This was hailed as a great stroke of economy, and Democratic papers fell to work at once, figuring up the annual saving to the Government. But last week fifty new appointments were quietly made in the yard, and more are [illegible].

The Democratic brethren do not appear to dwell together in peace and unity. The Memphis Avalanche lets loose an editorial landslide entitled "Kicked by an Ass," dealing with the New York World, the leading Democratic organ of the North, for assailing the policy of President Cleveland. It concludes that the World is an hysterical demagogue and its attacks are an honor and a help to a decent Administration.

The Southern Democratic papers hold widely differing views on the tariff question. For instance, while Mr. Watterson, of the Louisville Courier Journal, is shouting for free trade, with all of its distressing effects, the Macon Telegraph remarks: "Any revision of the tariff that secures the sanction of the American people must be made upon a settled principle, that of Protection to American interests, and hence must proceed from men of other than Mr. Watterson's views."

The address of Commander Burdette to the comrades of the Grand Army of the Republic in regard to the fund for a monument to General Grant indicates the way in which the noblest and most worthy memorial to the great soldier will be raised, and there is no question that from the organization there will be a subscription fitst in [illegible] representing every veteran of the Northern armies, and manifesting the pride and gratitude of those who make it [illegible] to him who receives it.

That [illegible] of Mugwumpian politics, the New York Evening Post, in speaking of the [illegible] Democratic candidate for Governor, says in one column that the Hill boom is not likely to result in anything beyond a complimentary vote for its owner and [illegible], but in another it remarks: "There is this week a great deal of talk about Mr. Flower in the country papers, but Governor Hill seems to be getting the delegates. If Hill is getting the delegates, just how the Post figures that he is to receive nothing beyond a compliment [illegible]."

While the senior Haskell is denouncing Senator Sherman in the Boston Herald for "waving the bloody shirt," Haskell junior in the Minneapolis Tribune says: "John Sherman is telling the truth in his Ohio speeches with a resolute persistence that the Bourbons greatly despise. To whine that Sherman is resurrecting the forgotten issues of twenty-five years ago, and that he is 'waving the bloody shirt,' does not answer his argument. It is because his strictures [illegible] pertain to living and pertinent issues that their sting is felt."

Senator Sabin, who is in Washington, said in substance in reply to an inquiry as to the correctness of the report that he had written a letter to the President pledging his support to him in confirmation of his appointments: "I have written no such letter to the President or to any one, and never thought of doing so. There is no foundation whatever for the report. I have never heard it intimated by the President or any of his friends that my support was either needed or desired. My attitude in this matter is no secret, however. It is conceded that he has the right to appoint his political sympathizers to office, and I will vote to confirm them when they are shown to be fit for the places to which they are selected—where they are appointed on fair political grounds, without detriment to the public interest, and without smirching the reputation of the Republican officials who have preceded them. But where it is shown that Republicans have been removed to the damage of the public service, and upon false charges which have injured their good name, I shall do my best to secure for them the fullest opportunity for vindication."

The Higgins administration, upon its native heath, has received that indorsement which all true Democrats secretly accord it, but for the open expression of which by any duly qualified body it has heretofore longed in vain, says the Philadelphia Press. The Gormonocracy of Maryland, in convention assembled, recently resolved that the Republican office-holders "ought not to be allowed to remain parts of a Democratic administration," and that "a civil service system which permitted such appointments, or which can be so managed as to secure the retention of such incumbents, requires speedy and radical reform." The rugged and picturesque honesty of this declaration is not shadowed by the subsequent plank in the platform, which provides that once the Republicans are turned out and the Democrats in, "their tenure of office ought to depend upon their actual or continued fitness to perform official duties." There is evidently nothing retiring about Mr. Higgins' constituents. They want the offices first and then a guarantee of perpetual tenure in them.

The Pot Boiling at Augusta.

The appearance in nearly every Democratic paper of two or three-column letters from Augusta correspondents denouncing the "trickery and deception" by which it is alleged that Morton and two or three of his friends procured the appointment of the brother-in-law of one of them as postmaster, shows how lively the pot has been set boiling at the State Capital by the result of Morton's secret visit to Washington. The Commercial's Augusta special begins in this style:

The long agony in regard to the Augusta post-office is at last over. The closing acts in the play have been on a par with the whole thing from the beginning. Secrecy, intrigue and deception have all had full swing in this celebrated case. The full history of the case has never been published and probably never will be, but so far as Col. Morton goes, Blaine has won his case in preventing his appointment.

The same writer goes on to say that Morton "last Sunday night took the Pullman train from an adjoining town and instructed his family to say that he was in Boston, and that his companions were equally secretive in getting away on their mission. When their departure was learned it was proposed to send a protest to the President against any 'snap judgment,' but assurance was given by friends of Morton and F. C. Allen that they had promised in case Morton could not be appointed that 'it should have a fair chance' for the place." The correspondent says:

The facts in the possession of the writer if given to the public would prove beyond a shadow of a doubt that a deliberate plan was formed by Col. Morton, F. C. Allen and Oscar Holway to prevent any general expression of preference for candidates. This unfortunate decision and action on the part of these three and the bitter feelings engendered on the part of some of Morton's supporters will very much weaken an already too weak organization.

The Boston Post and Globe and the Argus have similar reports of the bitter feeling aroused among the Augusta Democracy by the sharp practice of their late darling Morton. The Argus correspondent says:

The candidate while in poor health and burdened with years is a gentleman whose Democracy none can question, and who still so far as his health allows, [illegible] hard feelings engendered by this unfortunate move of Messrs. Allen, Holway and Morton will not wear away easily. For a while * * * Those who for months have sacrificed their own interests to aid Major [illegible] Morton's chances are very angry that he should abuse their confidence and show such utter disregard of their rights to have the same hearing that he has had.

So although a Democrat has been appointed postmaster at Augusta still they are not happy.

A Hard Case for the Mugwumps.

The Mugwump defenders of the Administration who have been quick to excuse the President's shortcomings, and who even went so far as to congratulate him on the selection of a "purely business man" when he appointed Hubert O. Thompson as naval Officer [illegible] Collector of New York, are at their wits' end to apologize for the acts of the new Collector before the people. [illegible] light as not to reflect discredit upon Mr. Cleveland's use of the appointing power. Since the induction of Mr. Hedden into office the Custom House has been in constant warfare with the civil service law. Before he had time to familiarize himself with the most unimportant duties of the office, Collector Hedden accompanied his master, the notorious Thompson, to Saratoga on the occasion of the meeting of the Democratic State Committee, to aid in getting the machine in working order. Then followed the controversy between the Civil Service Commission and the Custom House officials, and now Collector Hedden has given indisputable evidence that it is his intention to perform the behests of the spoilsmen by the arbitrary removal of the Weigher of the Brooklyn district, an able and experienced officer, and the appointment of a Democratic rum seller in his place. Even the New York Evening Post feels constrained to say:

The case is a crucial one. It is an expression of contempt in the strongest and clearest form for the principles of good government by the persons whom the President has put in charge of the most important office in the country. They could not put this contempt into a shape more offensive to voters in this city and Brooklyn than by pointing a thoroughly disreputable man to any position of trust and responsibility. This particular man is the embodiment of all that is worst in both New York society and politics. It is therefore an offence which the friends of reform can neither pass over nor explain away. After Capt. Bacon has been restored and Stelling sent back to his liquor shop it will be for the President to say whether men who have so grossly abused his confidence as they have shown themselves so far out of sympathy with his views about government can be allowed to remain in charge of an establishment so important as the New York Custom House.

As Collector Hedden was the selection of Hubert O. Thompson, a staunch supporter of President Cleveland, it is safe to say that he will hardly be removed as the Post suggests for doing the work for which he was appointed.

No Objection.

The venerable ex-Gov. Horatio Seymour of New York thinks that a majority of the Civil Service Commission should be composed of men in political sympathy with the Administration. Such was the idea of the framers of the law. There can be no objection to a reconstruction of the present Commission with this end in view. Indeed, such a change, made as President Cleveland would be quite sure to make it, with a view to securing more capable men and equally good friends of reform would be an excellent move. And the sooner it is made, the better.—Boston Herald.

The above paragraph affords striking evidence of the insincerity of the Herald's reform pretenses. The prime object hoped to be accomplished through the instrumentality of the civil service law was to absolutely divorce the civil service from politics and conduct it on strictly business principles. Appointments were to be made wholly upon the applicant's fitness for the position to be filled, and the question of his party politics was not to be considered for or against him. Now, however, the Herald, which claims to be one of the leading reform organs in the country, coolly advises a change in the Civil Service Commission itself solely for political reasons. If President Cleveland is the civil service reformer the Herald represents him to be, why is it necessary to reorganize the Commission appointed to carry out the principles of the law, and whose duties are specifically defined, in order that the President and the Commission should be in "political sympathy?" Such a change for such a purpose would be in the interest of Democratic "reform" instead of civil service reform.

They Like Salt.

There was rather an amusing incident at the Ebbitt House a day or two ago. Senator Sawyer, of Wisconsin, who was en route to New York, met Senators Beck and Harris at the hotel, and, after passing the compliments of the day, said: "Well, gentlemen, how do you like your new administration?" [illegible]

"Well, said Senator Beck, after waiting in vain to hear from Harris, "I am tolerably well satisfied.—It beats the administration which preceded it anyhow. Yes, I am pretty well satisfied."

"So am I," said Harris, in a way that showed that he was about as happy as Beck, who, everybody knows is not happy at all.

"Well," said Senator Sawyer, "I think I can tell you a story that will illustrate about how well you are pleased. Now promise me that if I hit it right the first time you will own up."

So they promised.

"Well," he said, "there was a dozen fellows up in our pine timber country, who clubbed together one fall to go into the woods and cut logs. They hadn't much money, and their plan was to work together, incurring just as little expense as possible, run their logs together, and after marketing them in the spring divide the money equally. This plan was acceptable to all, when it occurred to some one that they should have decided who should be cook for the party. It was positively necessary that some one should do the cooking, for they were determined not to hire a cook. So they all fought against the duty. If it some one must do it and so they decided that they should draw lots, and the one getting the longest should be cook, but if any fellow complained of the cooking he should take that duty himself, and excuse the first one selected. So they went into camp and the first duty the new cook essayed was to cook a pot of beans. By some chance he got them altogether too salt, so much so that they were entirely unfit to eat. The men were hungry, however, and at meal time were promptly on hand for their beans. Some of the more cautious tasted them [illegible], but one fellow who was especially hungry [illegible] fairly bolted a whole mouthful and sprang to his feet shouted in his disappointment: 'Great heavens! how [illegible] salt these beans are.' Then suddenly recalling their agreement at the first of the first [illegible] he [illegible] 'but that I like them salt.'"

The Massachusetts Democrats [illegible] Andrews [illegible] Mugwumps for Governor [illegible] action would not affect Gove [illegible] election.

A CUP FOR THE GENESTA.

She Wins the Douglass Cup at the Regatta of the New York Yacht Club.

The Grayling Wins the Bennett Cup.

NEW YORK, Sept. 18 The English cutter Genesta retrieved herself by winning the regatta given under the auspices of the New York Yacht Club, near Sandy Hook, to-day As it was the annual race of the club the prizes consisted of two cups, one given by Commodore James Gordon Bennett for schooners and the other by Vice Commodore Douglas, for cutters or sloops There were ten entries as follows: Schooners—Fortuna, Grayling and Dauntless, cutters—Genesta, Ileen, Stranger, Clara and Isis, centre board sloops—Gracie, Athlon and Daphne The day opened bright and clear with a stiff breeze from the southwest. The course was a triangular run of thirty-five miles from an imaginary line drawn between Scotland lightship and the judges' boat Luckenbach

The course was as follows First leg east by north, second leg southwest by west, three quarters northwest, and third leg back to the starting point The first two legs were 13½ miles and the third was 8½ miles Shortly before eleven the tug whistled for preparation and a few minutes later the signal for the start was given The first yacht to cross the line was the [illegible] at 11 o'clock, 11 minutes and 3 seconds She was followed by the Clara at 11 11 00 The third craft was the Genesta, upon which all eyes were fixed She glided over the line at 11 11 30 and was followed a few seconds later by the Fortuna Then came respectively the Grayling, Athlon, Dauntless, Gracie, Daphne and Isis The last two were handicapped by an allowance of five minutes The Genesta forged rapidly ahead and gained steadily upon the yachts which had crossed before her

She gained upon the Clara and Ileen but was in turn closely pressed by the Fortuna At 11 45 the Genesta, Ileen and Fortuna were almost abreast of each other, with the English cutter slightly in the lead The Genesta gained slowly upon the other two and after the first five miles it became evident that the Genesta was ahead and intended to keep the first place Capt Carter dexterously rounded the first buoy at 12 40 15 followed by the Fortuna which made the turn at 12 50 23 The Grayling manifested good sailing powers and passed the Red float a few seconds after the Fortuna The Gracie then attracted attention by pressing forward and rounded the buoy fourth in the list.

The Genesta made a big sweep to windward and left the others so far behind that the race seemed certain for her although the Gracie threatened her seriously The second buoy was passed by the Genesta at 1 07 [illegible], and the Grayling which had secured second place, turned it 3 19 The Fortuna came third and the Gracie fourth On the home stretch the English vessel came scudding like a duck and passed the line at Scotland big lightship at 4 41 10, with the Grayling second The Genesta's actual time was 4 15 50 the Grayling's 4 41 33 and the Fortuna's 4 42 27 The crew of the Genesta were heartily applauded by the thousands of spectators on the pleasure steamers

There were private sweeps[illegible] contested for during the race by the English cutter Clara, New York cutter Ileen and Isis and sloop Athlon, which stakes were won by the Clara The Bennett prize cup was awarded to the Grayling and the Douglas cup to the Genesta The English cutter her owner, captain and crew received an ovation after the [illegible]

FIRE RECORD

Heavy Fire in the Works of the Smith American Organ Company

BOSTON Sept 18 Shortly before seven o'clock to-night fire broke out in the [illegible] of the Smith American Organ [illegible] corner of Montgomery and Clarendon streets This building is a five-story brick structure with a frontage of about 100 feet on Montgomery street with an ell running back some 75 feet on Clarendon street The first floor was occupied by the [illegible] rooms and office and the second as the mill room The third story in which the fire originated is known as the action room The fourth was used as a trimming room and the fifth floor was the varnishing department in which was stored large quantities of varnish The fire spread to the fourth and fifth stories very rapidly Three alarms were sounded in quick succession and numerous streams were brought to bear on the fire and the flames on the third floor were soon subdued In the mean time however, the fire had reached the varnish and soon the entire upper floor was a mass of flames, burning with the greatest fury and fierceness in the [illegible] The fire at 8 45 [illegible] was still burning fiercely There is no danger of the fire communicating to surrounding buildings The peculiar situation of the burning building is most favorable to firemen

About 9 30 the upper floor fell and half an hour later the fire was practically under control The stock on the fourth and fifth floors was entirely destroyed while that upon the third floor was badly damaged by fire and smoke The loss to the stock upon the first and second floors and in the basement will be entirely by water The company carried a heavy stock and it is thought the entire loss will reach $100 000 This is mere speculation however as the firm absolutely refuses to give any figures The property is insured

Destructive Prairie Fires—Loss $75 000

BISMARK, D T, Sept 18 Prairie fires have raged in this vicinity to-day with unusual fierceness Fifty farmers were burned out, losing houses and crops, the losses ranging from $100 to $8,000 each The aggregate loss thus far reported is over $75,000 The fires are still raging and the wind carries the flames over ploughed ground to other fields so that no one seems safe

Flour Mill Burned—Loss $100,000

LEAVENWORTH, Kan, Sept 18. Rush & Sprague's flour mill, having a capacity of 800 barrels per day, was burned to-night, loss $100,000

NEW HAMPSHIRE.

A Notable Clay Pigeon Shoot

MANCHESTER, Sept 18 The most notable shooting tournament ever held in New Hampshire took place here to-day under the auspices of the Manchester Shooting Club, there being 50 expert gunners in attendance The feature of the meeting was a match between W. S. Perry, of Worcester, Mass., and C M Stark, of Dunbarton, N H, for $250 a side, the conditions being 50 single clay pigeons and 25 pairs double birds each In the singles Stark made 44 and Perry 43 In the doubles Stark made 35 and Perry 40. Stark's total 79, Perry's total 83, the latter thus winning the match There was a great deal of fine shooting in the sweepstakes, H W Ayer, of Marlboro, Mass., doing the best work

OHIO

A Political Rencounter.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 18. Last night General Durbin Ward delivered a political speech at Lebanon, O., in which he said that the offence of Police Lieutenant Mullen, recently released from jail where he had been imprisoned for violating the federal election laws, last November, was mild compared with the outrages committed by United States Marshal Wright during the October election in this city. To-night Ward and Wright met on a train going to Lebanon, and a lively discussion took place over Ward's remarks last night The quarrel ended by Wright striking Ward a severe blow over the eye with sufficient force to draw blood. Other passengers prevented further difficulty.

SUBMITS TO THE LAW.

A Mormon Bishop Pleads Guilty and Pays a Fine.

SALT LAKE CITY, Sept. 18. Bishop John Sharp, the Utah director of the Union Pacific Railroad, one of the wealthiest and most influential Mormons, appeared in court to-day and pleaded guilty to unlawful cohabitation. He claimed that the plural marriage in question was entered into before there was any statute against it, in good faith, according to his religion, but he recognized the supremacy of his adopted country's laws and would live within them henceforth. He said he would not advise any one else to break the law. He was fined $300 and discharged on payment of this amount. [illegible]

Circulating Notes.

WASHINGTON, Sept 18. The United States Treasurer is in receipt of requests from all parts of the country for five and ten dollar notes, in large quantities He says the supply of these notes is sufficient to meet all demands and added in response to an inquiry on the subject that so far as he knows there is no immediate prospect of a resumption of the issue of one and two dollar notes.

Chinese Laundrymen not Boycotted

Members of the Knights of Labor state that the subject of boycotting Chinese laundries has not been mentioned in their meetings It is further said that a boycott could not be issued against these laundries on the plea of cheap labor, as their prices are generally higher than those of washer women The Craftsman, the labor paper published in this district will in its next issue to-morrow contain an editorial on this subject which concludes "When an official edict is put forth to boycott the Chinese we believe the Chinese will go, but at present this can hardly be done on the plea of 'cheap labor,' as applied to the laundry business, nor yet on any fact of inferior workmanship"

THE OUTRAGES ON THE CHINESE.

Examination by the Union Pacific Directors and the Chinese Consuls—No American Born Citizens Engaged in the Outrage

CHEYENNE, Wyoming, Sept 18 The government directors of the Union Pacific Railroad after investigating the condition of affairs at Rock Spring, the scene of the recent outrage upon the Chinese miners, decided to send the following despatch to Secretary Lamar

The undersigned, Government Directors of the Union Pacific Railroad, pursuant to laws report that we have made an investigation upon the spot into the alleged outrage which recently occurred at this place We find such a condition of affairs here as in our opinion endangers the property of the road, jeopardizes the interest of the government and calls for prompt interference We think, therefore it important that full authority should be given the proper officers to afford ample assistance to the managers in their efforts to protect the property of the company and conduct the business of the road

Signed,
E P ALEXANDER,
M A HANNA,
JAMES W SAVAGE

The Chinese consul at San Francisco, Col Bee, and the Chinese consul at New York are here with an interpreter to make a thorough investigation in behalf of the Chinese Government of all the circumstances of the outbreak Col Bee had all [illegible] the remains of some of the Chinamen who were killed exhumed It was found in two instances that the skulls of the Chinamen were fractured indicating that they were killed in a struggle at close quarters The consuls have offered a reward of $15 each for additional bodies found in the vicinity Accurate returns as to the number of Chinamen killed cannot be made, but as far as can now be learned there are 15 missing and the whole number killed is 25 Col Bee has made up his mind from conversations with citizens and officials that any attempt to bring the offenders to justice will fail

His intention is to telegraph the State Department through the Legation, calling for the prosecution of the criminals by the United States as is under the provisions of the treaty with China Col Bee says all proceedings that have been had in the matter so far are a bold farce and unless the matter is taken in hand by the United States authorities there will be nothing done He finds that eleven of the grand jury before whom the cases of the men recently arrested will go, are citizens of Rock Springs [illegible] of the miners, all of whom are sympathizers with the rioters, while of the petit jury 14 of the 24 are from Rock Springs

Col Bee states as one remarkable result of the inquiries that not one of the men engaged in the outbreak was an American born citizen He denies it especially [illegible] that the outcry against the Chinese which is depended on to justify the butchery comes from men who are not themselves natives and many of them not citizens of the United States Adjutant-General Williams, of Gen Schofield's staff, is taking up with Gen Schofield a statement of the situation and gave his opinion that in consequence of the amount of guard duty to be done 100 more soldiers should be sent here It is thought that work will be resumed in two of the mines on Monday

THE BOSTON STEAMERS We have received a bulletin from the Boston & Bangor Steamship Company giving the following information about the Boston steamers Commencing Friday, October 16th, the steamers Penobscot and Cambridge will leave Boston alternately every Monday, Wednesday and Friday, and commencing Monday, October 19th, will leave Bangor every Monday, Wednesday and Friday for Boston, until further notice (Probably until December 30, 1885.) The steamer Katahdin will be withdrawn from the route October 16th, upon her arrival in Boston from Bangor, and all officers who have not received by that date a special assignment or appointment, will have their time made up, and their names will be dropped from the pay roll.

HANDSOME HARNESSES We were shown yesterday at the harness shop of Mr. Edward Jordan, on Central street, some harnesses which had just been manufactured according to orders which came in a rather novel manner. While William H. Vanderbilt was at Bar Harbor this summer he enjoyed many rides in the buckboard of Rollins & Prescott. As has already been stated he was so pleased with the vehicle that he gave its makers, W. H. & H. E Davis, of Ellsworth, an order for one exactly like it. He also was particularly struck with the harnesses and finding out where they were made Mr. W. K. Vanderbilt immediately ordered a duplicate pair which Mr. Jordan has just completed. They are made of the very best of oak leather, with solid brass trimming, and altogether they are the best pair of harnesses which we have seen for a long time. They were shipped to Mr. Vanderbilt by express last night.

Mr. John Wrenshaw, a Government surveyor, met with a singular accident a few days ago. He was at work in Yellowstone Park and was crossing a lake in a boat with two other men when they were struck by lightning. One of the men was killed, while Mr Wrenshaw and the other were rendered unconscious and were rescued while in this condition. Mrs Wrenshaw is the youngest daughter of Capt. Richard Winslow, of Brewer, and is now visiting in Brewer with her two children.

RESIDENT FRENCH TEACHER Bangor now has a resident French teacher. We refer to Prof De Mazade, who has come here to reside with his family, and who has already formed large French classes, which are composed of some of our leading business men The advantages of a resident teacher of French cannot be too fully appreciated and many are doubtless aware of that fact, as Prof De Mazade's list of pupils is increasing every day Seven are to be added to-day, which brings the number up to twenty The methods of teaching are such that the pupils make rapid progress

BAND OF HOPE As the vestry of the First Parish church has been undergoing repairs, the Rev H I Griffin, pastor of Hammond street church, has courteously tendered the use of his vestry to the Band of Hope Sunday School Being more centrally located for the school than the First church, the offer was thankfully accepted The school will meet at the usual time three o'clock Sunday, when a full attendance is desired All the friends of temperance are cordially invited to attend and take part in the exercises The officers of the school wish to thank the good people of the First Parish church for the use of their pleasant vestry during the winter and spring, and for the aid rendered by the pastor and people while there They also wish to thank the Sons of Temperance, who are always willing to render any assistance in their power to aid the temperance cause for the use of Stetson's Hall

STATE CONVENTION OF THE Y M C A The State Convention of the Young Men's Christian Association of Maine will be held in Bangor, Oct 22 25, inclusive arrangements for which are almost completed The outlook for this gathering of young men from all parts of our State is most encouraging The interest in Association work is increasing in all its branches Never in the history of Maine has this work taken hold of the young men as during the present year, new organizations are being effected in the various towns and colleges in this State Representatives will attend this convention from all the principal cities and towns of Maine, also the College Associations at Colby University, Bowdoin, State College and Bates, as well as distinguished representative association workers from New York and elsewhere The meetings of the convention will be held each day and evening the morning afternoon and evening sessions Time and place will be announced hereafter The delegates will be the guests of the Bangor Association and will be entertained at the homes of our citizens, whose well known hospitality will we know be most liberally extended

AMUSEMENTS

Annie Pixley

There was a very large sale of seats yesterday for the Annie Pixley engagement The following notice is from the Boston Advertiser of Sept 8th

The regular season of the Boston Theatre was opened last night by Miss Annie Pixley as M'liss in the play of that name supported by an efficient company Her appearance after a two years absence from this city was greeted by a large and friendly audience Miss Pixley's impersonation of the uncouth child of the Sierras has been somewhat chastened and refined by her experience abroad but it has lost nothing of its buoyancy, abandon and rollicking vivous humor Her singing has also improved in style, and she has a budget of new songs which are very catchy and taking She was very well supported by Mr Harry Meredith as Yuba Bill and Mr M C Daly as Judge Beeswinger Their interpretations however, differ in no essential respects from those of their predecessors The rest of the cast was fully equal to the requirements of the piece, and the singing was very fine

Notes

The sale of seats for J S Murphy's Kerry Gow opens Monday morning

Subscriptions came in very well yesterday for the Thomas concert

The Windsor Hotel.

Throughout the New England Fair week the Windsor Hotel was crowded with guests and although it accommodated about five hundred people many were turned away. Those who remained, however, had none but the most complimentary remarks to offer about the house and its genial clerks and employes. Mr. H. W. Chase, the proprietor, was constantly present, attending to the wants of his guests while the genial clerks, Messrs. F. W. Durgin and Clark Soule, fully sustained their popularity. The Rockland Courier-Gazette representative at the fair stopped at the Windsor and has the following about his stay in Bangor

To begin with, he was domiciled at the Windsor Hotel, now under the proprietorship of H W Chase, and found it first-class in every respect Mr Chase took this house six years ago It was then known as the Franklin House, and had lost the good prestige it had formerly enjoyed under the management of the late W D McLaughlin Mr Chase at once put the house in order, renovating it throughout and after a short time the business began to increase and by his superior management it now ranks among the best hotels in eastern Maine Mr Chase has large business capacity, and is a courteous, whole-souled gentleman Genial Frank W Durgin is the worthy assistant of Mr Chase and has all the qualities requisite to successful hotel management, and is always pleasant and affable To him as well as Mr Chase is due a share of the popularity of the Windsor

In addition to this very complimentary notice he gives a full description of the house occupying one-fourth of a column

A TROUBLESOME CUSTOMER

The Sheriffs in Piscataquis County Have a Lively Time Making an Arrest

DOVER, Sept 17th

On Wednesday afternoon Sheriff Martin, accompanied by Deputy Sheriff Leonard, went to Parkman from Dover to arrest Cyrus C Caswell who was indicted at this term of court for assault upon one Nathaniel Cobb, at Parkman In October 1884 The officers reached Parkman late in the afternoon, and proceeded to the residence of Caswell a small dilapidated house nearly half a mile from Parkman Corner On the way to the place the sheriff was warned by the neighbors that some one would be likely to be killed if they attempted to make the arrest as Caswell had a gun and revolvers and knives in his house and that he was a dangerous man, but Sheriff Martin was not born in the woods to be scared by an owl Accompanied by Deputy Leonard, and several of the citizens, he proceeded at once to the house of Caswell arriving there at about eight o'clock and knocked at the door several times but received no response Finally the sheriff called to Caswell to come out and surrender himself, telling him that he was an officer who had come to arrest him, and that he must have him, even if he had to tear the house down

Caswell then replied that he would not come out, that they had attempted to arrest him a short time before and did not succeed and neither should they this time and that he would blow out the brains of the first man who attempted to enter Finding it useless to talk the sheriff directed one of his aids to break in the window, the lower part of which was boarded up After the window had been broken in above the portion which was boarded up a lantern was procured and held so as to throw the light through the opening and disclose the situation [illegible] The sheriff then saw Caswell standing in the door of his bedroom with a gun in his hand presented ready to fire By the light of the lantern the sheriff saw that the gun was uncapped and going up to the window, upon pretence of showing Caswell the papers which he had, he induced him to come within reach when he seized hold of the gun and then [illegible] of Caswell, when a fearful struggle ensued One of the assistants at [illegible] in at the window and [illegible] from the [illegible] and came to the assistance of the sheriff and the prisoner was securely ironed The officers [illegible] started for Dover, reaching here at about [illegible] o'clock in the evening

A Country Heart.

III.

It was the brightest, most sparkling morning imaginable. The sea was blue in the distance, but molten gold where the Halcyon sprang through the sunshine which lay across Torferry Bay. Kate Verey and Gerard Anstey were leaning against the side, watching the clean furrow she left along the smooth water—at least, the girl's eyes wandered along the track, but the man's were fixed upon her face. Mrs. Verey, with her pillows and novels, was plied conveniently out of hearing. Captain Anstey was a masterful looking man. He was evidently having his say; the say for which he had come all the way from Scotland to "have out" with Kate Verey; and very soon both her hands found their way into his, and her eyes roved no longer along the sunlit furrow, but looked straight up into his dark face, and the compact was completed. Presently he puts his hand into his waistcoat pocket and draws forth a tiny parcel; a diamond ring with a broad gold setting.

"Look inside," and he holds it slanting so that she can read the letters engraved within—"G. and K., 22d August, 1882"—and then he slips the ring on to her third finger.

"Twenty-second of August! Why, that is to-day. How did you come to know that we—, that is that I—?" She stops in confusion.

How did I know that we should want an engagement ring this very day? Because I had made up my mind, and was not going to take any refusal," he answered, and Kate thinks that a masterful lover is the most delightful thing in the world.

"Of course you knew for certain I was here," she goes on, with the old desire to tease this confident person reviving in her. "But suppose I had been out, or ill, or at a picnic, and we had not met for a day or two, after all; what would you have done with your 22d of August? Good gracious!"—as the repeated date touched some hitherto slumbering chord of memory—"it is that poor boy's birthday, and I promised a week ago to keep it with him. Now, what will he think of me? What have I done? How could I forget it so completely?"

And she looks really so discomforted and confused that Captain Anstey states, and answers

"What can it matter what any boy thinks of you? Tell him, whoever he is, that you had more important things to think about, and then take him to the cake shop in Torferry, and give him a feed to make up. Or I'll tip him, if you like."

But these liberal ideas of consolation fail to comfort Kate for her careless treatment of her poor young friend. She feels as if a chill cloud had suddenly come over the perfect day, and again and again her thoughts will recur to poor Harry's disappointment, in spite of Gerard Anstey's attentions. He naturally thinks himself the hero of the hour, and cannot imagine why Kate should waste any consideration over the feelings of a boy (as far as Captain Anstey recollects, there are many very easy ways of assuaging a boy's wounded feelings), and his fiancee does not think necessary to explain that this boy is a head and shoulders taller than the Captain, and has quite as fine a mustache

IV.

Meanwhile the young Squire has wakened with the thought that the pleasantest day of his life has dawned, a day which, in spite of Fate in the shape of Madam Tredenick, he means to be complete master—a day which is to be only sunshine, and which is to throw a foretaste of radiance over all the coming years of his life. He had scarcely seen Kate to speak to since the day he had accompanied her into Torferry, but he had been twice over to Shepstone preparing for her reception at the farmhouse, and he thought with pride of all the preparations for her and her mother's comfort. There was a real Devonshire dinner provided, which would have served to feed a dozen hungry troopers; ducks and plum tart, a junket and unlimited cream. He hoped the London ladies would be able to put up with Mrs Loveys' country cooking and service. Her crockery and glass he had supplemented with contributions from the Park, surreptitiously abstracted and brought down in the Mermaid beforehand.

And the final instructions, how Mrs. and Miss Verey were to meet him at the landing stage where the little Mermaid lay, with all her glory of new cushions, were conveyed to Kate in a note, which it cost Harry some time and pains to compose, for, besides being so newhat inapt with his pen, it was the first time he had ever written to this girl who was so gracious, so beneficent to him, giving him her attention, her brightest smiles, her kindest words, he almost fancied her love. If she did not love him already she should do so soon—she, who was so quick, must know what crowning boon was to make his twenty-first birthday perfect, what birthday gift he was going to ask at her hands.

And this note was lying unopened with a heap of other uninteresting correspondence on Miss Verey's dressing-table, where she had tossed it down among The Graphics and Punchs which were weekly forwarded by Mrs Chamberlain, for had not Captain Anstey's card been brought to her at the same moment, and was not the card followed by the owner?

Harry had left the note to be sent to Myrtle Bank on that Monday afternoon when he rode out to Shepstone to make his final preparations, to settle some deck chairs in the orchard, where Mrs Loveys was to spread afternoon tea. And Kate Verey tossed it aside unnoticed, as she recognized her lover's footstep on the gravel under the bedroom window, and then heard the sharp thrill of the door bell, and the opening and shutting of the drawing-room door, the hurried scuffle of the maid-servant on the stairs, and knew that the event on which she had this summer staked her happiness had come to pass.

And, after that, the pleasant little tea-party—which poor Harry thought was a special institution for his benefit—followed as naturally at Myrtle Bank as it did when Captain Anstey dropped in four afternoons a week, in Lowndes Square. And the yachting engagement, with possibilities of another engagement tenderly implied in its persuasive "Will you come, Miss Kate?" was made, and the young Squire's carefully considered scrawl was swept aside and forgotten as completely as his birthday expedition and his whole existence.

Down at the landing-stage he waited, full of all the importance of the occasion, through two long bright hours of the morning, for with a countryman's consideration for two town-bred ladies, he had fixed the start a good deal later than Captain Anstey had done, and the Halcyon was bounding miles away while Harry anxiously pulling the tiller ropes of the Mermaid and looking up the little stony lane, expecting his guests to appear. Then, seized with dread that his instructions had not been plain enough, and that the ladies were certainly awaiting his escort at Maple Bank, he left his boat in charge of a boy, and darted up the hill at railroad pace to fetch them, quite overwhelmed at the thought that they should have waited, or that he had been remiss in the performance of any devoirs which they had expected of him.

"They be gone this tu hours," was the reply of the Myrtle Bank landlady, who was taking the opportunity to give her rooms a good turn out and had no time to waste in discussion. "No, Miss Verey, her said as they would be out all day, and mebbe till laate, so they would only want supper when they come to home and tu lay for a gentleman beside—they be gone out ta sail." And with this information, she began to sweep so determinedly that Harry saw she had really nothing more to tell.

Of course, that was where the mistake lay! They had gone direct to Shepstone, probably in the little Norfolk cart which Miss Verey sometimes hired for her mother.

Now for the Mermaid as fast as might be, and to get to Shepstone the best way he might, sailing or rowing as the tide served, to repair as much as possible the unlucky misadventure of that morning. But at Shepstone came out comely Mrs. Loveys, in her best spotted gown and a straw bonnet tied behind, to give an air of al fresco dignity to the entertainment.

"Where be they? Mr. Harry, my dear? I have everything prepared just beautiful. And will you please to look at the garnishing of the ducks, and if you please to say if the ladies will take green tea?"

Poor Harry could say nothing, but that he supposed there was some mistake, and he went and sat down by the water's edge, watching for a possible boat to make its appearance round the corner of the little cove; while Mrs. Loveys' eldest boy, "Sonny," was instructed to keep watch at the crossroads behind the farm-house, and report the approach of any carriage from Torferry way.

The morning and midday were passed now, and the afternoon crept on, getting closer and more sultry as the sun dropped among a pile of clouds banked up in the western sky, and only showed at intervals, gilding the edges of the purple mass with thundery-looking gold. Harry Tredennick resisted all Mrs. Loveys' invitations to come in and take a bit of dinner, in spite of his disappointment. He only filled his pipe again and again, and sat moodily staring across the clear water of the cove to the open sea beyond. And, suddenly, with a little breeze that crept close along the surface of the waves, the white wings of the Halcyon came across the picture at which he was disconsolately gazing—the Halcyon, with all sails set making for Torferry as fast as she could; for weather-wise sailors know that those clouds in the west, and little sudden noiseless breezes springing up unexpectedly, meant mischief. But the storm was not upon her yet, for there plainly visible to the miserable, despairing eyes of the boy, was Kate Verey, in her blue dress, leaning back against the taffrail, and one white, ungloved hand was lying on Gerard Anstey's dark head, that rested against her knee.

The Halcyon got safely into Torferry harbor before the rain came down and the breeze freshened into a regular squall; the great thing was that the ladies got back to Myrtle Bank safe and dry. Every one said it would have been such a bad ending to their delightful day, if they had been caught in the storm.

For there was a good deal of damage done that night. The yachts and the fishing-boats had to get in where they could, and put back the next day with different accounts of their difficulties and disasters. And, in the afternoon, with the high tide, the poor little Mermaid drifted into the bay, with her gay cushions gone and her mast snapped short, and nobody to bring her to at the steps as Harry Tredennick used to do so proudly. Captain Anstey brought the news up to Myrtle Bank, the young Squire was missing; but he never thought of connecting the lost master of the Mermaid with Kate's disappointed boy.

Harry never came to shore again. There is a colored window in the church, over the altar pew, that keeps his name in memory, but where his body lies in the great sea is an unfathomable secret, and when the family vault was shut down, after old Madam's funeral, it closed upon the last of the Tredennicks.

Miss Verey's engagement to Captain Anstey made an immediate difference in their plans, and caused their return to London to be considerably hastened. Kate is Mrs. Anstey now, and the Captain has the right, to be as dictatorial as he pleases, but his wife is much quieter than of old, and has tamed down in a manner that surprises all her old friends. It is wonderful to see how she has completely given up all her "little ways," as people used laughingly to call them. She has scarcely anything to say now to any man besides her husband, and society in general thinks that Mrs. Anstey is a nice woman spoiled by matrimony.

And Kate Anstey knows that, in spite of any happiness that comes to her in the life she has chosen, she will always carry about with her the reproach of some words which she heard in Torferry Church long ago, and which ring in her ears day and night: "There is sorrow on the sea: it cannot be quiet."—*H. Cancer of Tongue!

A Case Resembling that of Gen. Grant

Some ten years ago I had a scrofulous sore on my right hand, which gave me great trouble, and under the old time treatment was healed up, as I supposed. I was well, I found, however, it had only been driven into the system by the use of potash and mercury, and in March, 1882, it broke out in my throat, and, concentrated in what some of the doctors denominated cancer. I was placed under treatment for this disease. Some six or seven of the best physicians in the country had me at different times under their charge, among them three specialists in this line, but one after another would exhaust their skill and drop me, for I grew worse continually. The cancer had eaten through my cheek, destroying the roof of my mouth and upper lip, then attacked my tongue, palate and lower lip, destroying the palate and under lip entirely and half my tongue, eating out to the top of my left cheek bone and up to the left eye. From a hearty robust woman of 150 pounds, I was reduced to a mere frame of skin and bones, almost unable to turn myself in bed. I could not eat any solid food, but subsisted on liquids, and my tongue was so far gone I could not talk. The anguish of mind and the horrible sufferings of body which I experienced never can be revealed. Given up by physicians to die, with no hope of recovery upon the part of friends who sat around my bedside expecting every moment to be my last, in fact, my husband would place his hand on me every now and then to see whether I was alive or not, and at one time all decided that life was extinct, and my death was reported all over the country.

Such was my wretched and helpless condition the first of last October (1884), when my friends commenced giving me Swift's Specific. In less than a month the eating places stopped and healing commenced, and the fearful aperture in my cheek has been closed and firmly knitted together. A process of a new under lip is progressing finely, and the tongue which was almost destroyed is being recovered, and it seems that nature is supplying a new tongue. I can talk so that my friends can readily understand me, and can eat solid food again. I am able to walk about wherever I please without the assistance of any one, and have gained fifty pounds of flesh. All this under the blessing of a merciful Heavenly Father, is due to Swift's Specific. I am a wonder and a marvel to all my friends, hundreds of whom have known my intense sufferings, and have visited me in my afflictions. While I am not entirely well, yet my gratitude is none the less devout, and I am confident that a perfect recovery is now in sight. If any doubt these facts, I would refer them to Hon. John H. Traylor, State Senator of this district, who is my neighbor, Dr. T. S. Bradfield, of LaGrange, Ga., or to any other persons living in the southern part of Troupe County, Ga.

A MARVELOUS STORY

TOLD IN TWO LETTERS.

FROM THE SON: 9 Cedar St., New York, Oct. 28, 1882.

My father resides at Glover, Vt. He has been a great sufferer from Scrofula, and the enclosed letter will tell you what a marvelous effect has had in his case. I think his blood must have contained the humor for at least ten years; but it did not show, except in the form of a scrofulous sore on the wrist, until about five years ago. From a few spots which appeared at that time, it gradually spread so as to cover his entire body. I assure you he was terribly afflicted, and an object of pity, when he began using your medicine. Now, there are few men of his age who enjoy as good health as he has. I could easily name fifty persons who would certify to the facts in his case.

Yours truly, W. M. PHILLIPS.

FROM THE FATHER: "It is both a pleasure and a duty for me to state to you the benefit I have derived from the use of

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Six months ago I was completely covered with a terrible humor and scrofulous sores. The humor caused an incessant and intolerable itching, and the skin cracked so as to cause the blood to flow in many places whenever I moved. My sufferings were great, and my life a burden. I commenced the use of the SARSAPARILLA in April last, and have used it regularly since that time. My condition began to improve at once. The sores have all healed, and I feel perfectly well in every respect—being now able to do a good day's work, although 73 years of age. Many inquire what has wrought such a cure in my case, and I tell them, as I have here tried to tell you, AYER'S SARSAPARILLA. Glover, Vt., Oct. 21, 1882. Yours gratefully, HIRAM PHILLIPS."

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA cures Scrofula and all Scrofulous Complaints, Erysipelas, Eczema, Ringworm, Blotches, Sores, Boils, Tumors, and Eruptions of the Skin. It clears the blood of all impurities, aids digestion, stimulates the action of the bowels, and thus restores vitality and strengthens the whole system.

JACKSON'S

Whole Mixed Spice for Pickling.

The above spice is blended from an old English receipt of the choicest materials. It imparts no bitterness to the pickles and is the only spice sold that will give to Pickles, Catsup and Sauces, that delicious flavor which has hitherto only been obtained in Pickles of the most noted English manufacturers.
